Editorial

The term "green" has become more than just a metaphor for the environment in recent years; it now represents long-term, sustainable transformation. In addition to being necessary for the environment, the move towards a greener world signifies a significant change in the way we work, live, and interact with the environment. The core of this green movement is sustainability, which encourages people, organizations, and communities to embrace carbonreduction strategies. The push for change is transforming sectors and lifestyles, from sustainable agriculture and eco-friendly products to renewable energy sources like solar and wind power. Governments all throughout the world are enacting laws to pollution reduce and encourage conservation as they realize the value of green policies.

We are delighted to share the joyous news of outstanding SEE-2080 results achieved our students. by Congratulations to each of you for your hard work, dedication, and perseverance throughout this academic journey. Your achievements are a testament to your commitment to excellence. Your determination and effort have borne fruit, and we are immensely proud of your accomplishments. May this success be the stepping stone to a future filled with even greater achievements.

It gives me great pleasure to extend my best wishes to the entire Green Field World School community as we launch this E-newsletter. This platform has been serving as a window into the vibrant life of our school, showcasing the talents, achievements, and creativity of our students and staff. As the Program Head of +2, I am committed to providing extraordinary facilities and opportunities to our students. Our goal is to create an environment where each student can thrive academically, personally, and socially. We will continue to invest in innovative teaching methods, state-of-the-art resources, and a supportive learning atmosphere that encourages every student to reach their full potential. I am confident that this E-newsletter will be a source of inspiration, information, and pride for our entire school community.

I encourage all of you to actively contribute and share your unique perspectives and experiences. Together, let's continue to build a school that not only excels in academics but also fosters creativity, leadership, and a lifelong love for learning. Wishing this Enewsletter and all its readers the very best!

PODCAST: EXPERIENCE-SHARING DISCUSSION

A podcast is an open forum for discussion on a range of subjects where participants are encouraged to share their opinions. Thus, it was through the English Literary and Public Speaking Club that G.F.W.S. was introduced to it.

As an eighth-grader, my name is Angel Bimali, and I hosted the podcast on the 28th of Asar. Additionally, we had a conversation with our first podcast guest, Vice Principal Mrs. Rozina Karki, about how she succeeded as an educator despite juggling her personal and professional lives.

Still, the +2 advertisement in G.F.W.S. was the main topic of conversation. It was, nevertheless, G.F.W.S.'s first podcast. I had no trouble taping the show, and everything went quite smoothly.

JUNIOR SPEECH COMPETITION

Speech competitions are more than just events or competitions; they are a celebration of students' abilities, diligence, and camaraderie. It develops each student's critical thinking skills, self-assurance, and public speaking abilities. Finally, the moment has arrived! Ashad-21-Friday, 2081, went well.

The school held an inter-house speaking competition in the auditorium for junior grades 1–5. Twenty students in total, divided into two groups, showed up to participate in the competition and express their opinions, ideas, and thoughts on various subjects under the supervision of their house masters and classroom professors.

The school auditorium was alive with anticipation on the day of the competition as everyone saw the young speakers and future leaders. We were greeted at first with a lovely speech. We welcomed and introduced the judges and the chairperson. As each participant finished speaking, the kids applauded their house representatives with great enthusiasm.

Following the judges' assessment of each category, which considered the entries' overall impact, organization, gesture, posture, delivery, and performance.

On the 21st of Ashad, our school organized a delightful Rhymes Day for the youngest members of our school community: the students of Nursery, LKG, and UKG. The event aimed to foster a love for rhymes and rhythm among these young learners, while also enhancing their language skills and boosting their confidence. The event took place in the school's Auditorium, which was decorated with colorful posters of popular nursery rhymes and characters to create an inviting and cheerful atmosphere.

The primary objectives of Rhymes Day were to introduce young children to the joy of rhymes and poetry, develop language skills through fund and engaging activities. The event also encouraged the participation that aided in building confidence in speaking and performances. The event has also provided a platform for showcasing their talents in a supportive environment.

Action songs involving hand movements and simple choreography were performed. These songs combined singing with physical activity, making it fun and engaging for the children. Children recited their favorite nursery rhymes, either individually or in small groups. The emphasis was on expression, clarity, and enjoyment. The event saw enthusiastic participation from students of Nursery, LKG, and UKG. Teachers and support staff were present to guide and support the children throughout the
